The Parole Concluded.

The face of registration, in which Frank Cooley, sometimes called Cooley, and sometimes General Cooley, and always "poor" Cooley, played all the parts of Sir John Falstaff, was fully as largely puffed up as that of the one Falstaff described, after being thrown into the back-basket of foul lines, on its way to "Datchet mead," on "Datchet day"—the rankest compound of villainous smells that ever offended nostrils—was concluded, with some pomp, and apparently more "sack," on Friday night last, the Board working up to the hour of 12 o'clock. At that hour the "sack-basket," with Falstaff and the dirty dith at Datchet mead, of the things that were. Dr. Cooley ceased to be registrar; but the smell is not washed from him.

The few persons in this city, (ourselves among them) who had all along thought that some relics of decency still adhered to this puffed up supervisor of registration, have had ample grounds to change their minds. They have watched closely this wretched partisan of negro love, and negro self-praise, and witnessed all his tricks to enfranchise radicals and disfranchise conservatives—have noticed with what alacrity this modern Falstaff has "puffed" his slender and his Shallow, and watched his pomp as he gathered his shillies, "countless recruits to do the dirty work of such dirty dogs as Tom Fletcher, and the batch of villains that surrounded him."

In all his meanness, in all his unfairness, Cooley was ably seconded by five of his Board, three disagreeing and doing something to disannul the behests of their superior, but with little effect. Howard, radical candidate for the legislature, and a defamer of God's word; Frank Winkler, the shoe leather man, Callison, Hill and Earl seconded, in almost every instance, any and all moves of the supervisor, while Satterfield, although with him in most of his acts, disagreed in the action in respect to the manumission, probably for fear of the damages that might follow. Mr. Kesterson of Clay, and Mr. Patterson of Middleton, did not co-operate with the Supervisor and the majority of the Board, so fully as Cooley desired, but more fully than they should have done. They could not do so, as honest men, and the public will remember them for it.

Early in the doings of this grand inquisition, with power to punish by gillotine or auto da fe, a rule was made that all those persons objected to, and whose names were not reached, should be returned in the rejected list. But, we understand, that this piece of villainy was, at the close, reversed; so that these unfortunates will go up as qualified voters.

THE LAWYERS.
The following lawyers appeared for the people, as we understand, without compensation, save in one instance: Judge John F. Ryland, Amos Green, John E. Ryland, and Tilton Davis. And to these gentlemen our people are much indebted for the valuable services rendered by them. Judge Walker, and Mr. Beattie, both negro whining disunionists, appeared for the Board.

THE TREATMENT.
The treatment of the bar, by Cooley, from the very opening, was dictatorial, tyrannical, and insulting, he refused in the outset that no attorney should be admitted inside the bar. But he was taught better manners; and was forced to give way to the right, much as it hurt his Falstaffian taste. Several times, he ordered Mr. Amos Green, against whom this little man seemed to have special dislike, to sit down, or leave the room, and once or twice ordered the sheriff to take charge of him, and as often was he "coolly" told he should not go, that he appeared there as an attorney for the people, had rights, and was not to be mobbed into intimidation or driven out by him, that his clients might thereby suffer.

Mr. Green and Judge Ryland read to the Supervisor the law upon the subject, quoted the bill of rights adopted by the radical legislature, and endorsed by the radical legislature, that all persons accused had the right to be heard by attorney, and for the time he "heaved in," but sneaked off, like a whipped spaniel, to the telegraph office, and dispatched Wingate, another negro stranger, to know if he should tolerate counsel in a case only of disfranchisement. That found answered, it was claimed, it was optional with him—Dr. Cooley! He then made a ruling that the bar should retire outside; but Mr. Green suggested it would be better to leave Judge Ryland to attend the cases, and Mr. Davis and John E. Ryland to retain their seats inside. This arrangement effected, Mr. Green withdrew from the Board. But Cooley, with all his impudence, with all his bravado, stiletto at side, could not move that gentleman, nor drive him from doing his duty. Here a man of sense, a lawyer and gentleman, and a man of too much nerve for Cooley.

PAWPAW SITTING.
On Thursday evening, Judge Ryland called up the cases of those persons who had been relieved of disability by the decree of the circuit court, and proceeded to state the case, and read the law on the subject. Cooley immediately severely set Judge Walker to make the reply. That stranger, known to some dozen or so radicals, in the time, made his appearance, and also his statement, which, in half an hour after, in the case of Edward Winsor, Esq., he declined to accept. The law as expounded by Judge Ryland, and by John E. Ryland, was plain and unmistakable, that these decrees must be respected, unless they were assailable for fraud. But Cooley cared not.

Father Miller of Jefferson City, read in his pulpit, Sunday week, a receipt for taxes to the amount of $12, being the radical idea for Catholic church property. In his remarks following the reading he said the animus of the radical was in direct enmity to the Catholic church. The property of the church is held by the Bishop, and not by trustees, and this is the decree of section 12, art. I, of the new constitution, which provides that all such property shall be held by a board of trustees, and shall not exceed five acres in the country and one acre in town or city.
